

REGA MACHINE OIL

is a very heavy, viscous oil and is especially compounded for use on shaftings and general machinery. It is far superior to any machine oil that we have ever seen in this district, and we can recommend it very highly for use on slow speed engines and general farm machinery. Orders can be filled for barrels, half barrels or small quantities.

Saskatchewan Land and Homestead Company.

To the Editor of The Advocate:

Dear Sir:

In your issue of July 30th there appears an item in your column of local happenings, indicating that Mr. J. E. Cunningham, Managing Director of the Saskatchewan Land and Homestead Co., is in Red Deer on business in connection with the company's lands and stating that in the fall Mr. Cunningham will open an office of the company here and that the lands will be placed on the market.

In order that people in this district who may be interested in the lands referred to, may not be deceived, it would be well to state that the Saskatchewan Land and Homestead Co., Limited, does not own an acre of land in this locality, their position being shortly this: The Company several years ago transferred all their lands to the Leadley estate in satisfaction of a mortgage given to the late Edward Leadley by the Company. Litigation has been carried on between the Company as plaintiff and the Leadleys and the Moores as defendants for several years. Over a year ago before the Ontario Court of Appeal in Toronto, the Leadleys consented to the redemption of their mortgage and to allow the Company to redeem the land upon payment of the amount found to be due to the Leadleys in full and for and save and sale of the lands, by an accounting in court.

This and other matters of a contentious nature are still pending in the Ontario Courts and no one can state when they will be finally disposed of. After the amount due is definitely fixed, the Company will still have to find the money and pay it over before they can properly lay claim to ownership of any of the lands in question. At the present time the title to all of the lands referred to is in the hands of the Leadley estate and any assertion to the contrary is without foundation in fact.

Yours truly
J. CARLISLE MOORE.
Red Deer, August 9th, 1909.

The Editor The News.

Dear Sir:

In the Advocate of July 30th, there appeared an item which in full read, "Mr. J. E. Cunningham, Managing Director of the Saskatchewan Land and Homestead Company is in Red Deer on business in connection with the company's lands. The suit of the Company against the Leadleys and the Moores is about ended, and in the fall Mr. Cunningham will open an office of the company here and the lands will be placed on the market."

In the same paper of August 6th there appeared a letter from Mr. J. E. Cunningham taking exception to the above mentioned item, and stating that at the present time the title to all of the lands referred to is in the hands of the Leadley estate and any assertion to the contrary is without foundation in fact. Before going further I beg leave to challenge Mr. Moore to prove a single case of deception or attempt to deceive on my part or the part of any official at present connected with the Company, who would seem that he willfully leaves out an important part which states that "The suit of the Company against the Leadleys estate is about ended." Kindly note that no claim was made that the suit was entirely closed.

Permit me to give briefly the present position of affairs. We have three cases in Court offered to pay the Leadleys the full amount of the money due them, and despite the refusal of the Leadleys to accept the same, the Court decided that they had to take the money and hand over the land to the Company. The litigation since 1907 has been to decide what amount of money is due. The delay has been caused by the Leadleys in the production of their accounts and as the result of the judgment of the Master of the Court. Ordinary says by their "Seeking to enforce certain illegitimate and illegal charges described in my written judgment and by the irregular and unsatisfactory accounts brought in by the defendants." The amount which has to be paid is to be finally decided by the Court of Appeal next month and we will immediately pay off the Leadleys and take over the land, and expect to place it in the market this fall. No claim has been nor will be offered for sale until this is done. My present visit to Red Deer is to make myself familiar with the district and to assist in taking evidence regarding wood and hay cut off the land and the values of some of the parcels disposed of.

I desire to add that in March of 1909 the Leadleys issued an injunction restraining the Moores from further dealings with the land, and under the judgment of the Court of appeal in 1907, we do not have to pay the Moores one cent. Anything they get for their services is to come to them through the Leadleys. There is litigation between the Leadleys and the Moores, but with this we have nothing to do and it can in no way affect us or our title to the lands.

Yours respectfully,
J. E. CUNNINGHAM,
Managing Director, The Saskatchewan Land and Homestead Company, Ltd.

Albertans Burned in a Vernon Fire.

Vernon, B. C., Aug. 10.—The Okanagan hotel was burned down at 2 o'clock this morning. The bodies of three of the guests have been found and eight others are reported missing. The dead are: Julian Fuerns, Waskia, Wilbur Smith (with relatives at Calgary); and Robert Feachers. The buildings in the vicinity are fire blasted by the heat. The fire brigade is searching the debris for the missing. The Wilbur Smith mentioned is no relation to G. W. Smith of this town.

RED DEER'S BANNER CROP.

Cutting Will Be General Next Week.

So far the crops of the Red Deer district have been particularly well favored, as practically no damage from hail or frost has taken place, and cutting of Alberta Red wheat and barley will be general next week. Already a few fields of barley and rye have been cut and the yield in all cases is above the average. The oat crop is very heavy, and if the dry, warm weather continues, cutting will be general in two weeks.

Everything points to the Red Deer district having the best crop in its history.

The present is ideal weather for haying, and the farmers are straining every nerve to secure the crop before the grain is ready. Already the timothy crop is pretty well secured.

Wedding at Toronto.

The Toronto Globe of Saturday, July 31st, contained the following item of news: "A quiet wedding was solemnized at 3 o'clock on Thursday afternoon by the Rev. Edward Cayley in the chapel of St. Simon's church, when Miss Nina Constance, younger daughter of Mr. H. Franklin Putnam, was united in marriage to Mr. H. Wesley Wright of Red Deer, Alberta. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in a lovely suit of emerald green cloth and a large white hat. Mr. and Mrs. Wright left later in the afternoon for a trip up the Lakes before leaving for their future home in Alberta."

Mr. and Mrs. Wright arrived in Red Deer on Sunday evening from Edmonton, having returned west by the C. N. R. and they are at present guests of Mr. and Mrs. Neville. They will take up their residence on Mann street in a few days in the house formerly occupied by R. W. Grievie. The bride made many friends in Red Deer while visiting here last year, and the News welcomes her back to our midst and extends greetings and congratulations to her and her estimable husband, and wishes them both a happy wedded life.

Several Real Estate purchases have taken place since 1st inst.

New Bridges Being Built.

ROADS IMPROVED AND OPENED UP.

E. Michener, M.L.A., has been busy the past week with R. W. McIntyre, assistant chief engineer of the Public Works Department of the province, looking over the east and west part of the constituency with a view to making many needed improvements for the benefit of the settlers. The question of where the new bridge will cross the river east was looked into and a decision will be arrived at in a short time, and it is likely a bridge will be built this winter. Some money was granted to open up the road from Hilledown to Pine Lake up the central line of township 37, range 26, a distance of about six miles. Mr. Fiske was given control of the work. We also undertake the township line between townships 33 and 39, range 24, out east across the river, will be fixed up and three bridges will be built over small streams. About $800 will be spent on the trail from Content to Trenville and from Trenville into Red Deer. The road going up the west hill towards the Industrial School will be made as wide again as it is a dangerous spot. The road will also be graded out to the school. An 80 ft span bridge will be built at the mouth of the Horseguard, a small bridge a mile east of the new bridge will be built on the trail from Content to Trenville and a couple of small bridges put in west of Ekville for the Local Improvement districts.

The engineer says Mr. Michener has been doing much work that tells that has been done in this constituency before.

Red Deer Defeated at Edmonton.

Red Deer Football Team went to Edmonton on Saturday last and played the Edmonton Caladonians who were the winners of the district. The result was rather disastrous Edmonton winning by 8-2. Red Deer forwards played well and had good combination but the defence was poor and could do little against the good combination of the Edmonton forwards though this was partly owing to Red Deer not being used to the grassy field on which they fell time and again. Edmonton scored 5 goals in the first half and though they had several chances Red Deer failed to score on account of wild shooting. After half Edmonton again started scoring but Red Deer showed a little more form and Hewson put the ball through and shortly afterwards Main got the second one for Red Deer. Hewson had a couple more chances at the goal but hit the goal-keeper. J. W. Ward refereed and the game was clean. For Red Deer Steadman, Hewson and Main played the best game. About seven or eight hundred people saw the game. After the game the team were given the run of the Y. M. C. A. building and had a good time. The boys met many old Red Deer men and they all seem to like Edmonton. The Red Deer team were: goal, Davis; backs, Gee and Domoney; halves, Carswell, Bawil and Castle, forwards, Main, Hewson, Krause, Steadman and Kent.

On Monday night Loyminster and Edmonton played a tie game the score being 1-1. They will have to play again for the championship of the north.

THE FUTURE OF WESTERN CANADA.

In an article dealing with conditions in the west, "World's Work," one of the most prominent magazines of the United States, says:

Near the western border of Alberta there is a little town called Claresholm. It is not much of a place to look at, but men say that it is the greatest primary grain market in Canada, and ranks with the greatest in the United States. They add that on many of the farms in that region men market year by year more than sixty bushels of wheat to the acre.

That is the new prairie-land of the Canadian Northwest, peopled by men drawn from all the world by the lure of the soil. Breaking the prairie is no easy life, and it takes good men to do it; men have grown rich by it, but only by hard work.

One is inclined to think, watching the men that come and go on the prairie railroads, meeting them by chance, or talking to them with set purpose, that the gospel of the prairie lands is labor, just as it has always been. In nearly every farm-land section of this huge Canadian Northwest, the farms are very big, the population necessarily scant, and the chances of companionship of a congenial sort slim.

The race for wealth or independence, as the case may be, is a hard one. A quarter-section of land means constant work, until, at last, some turn of the commercial wheel sends the price of the land up to the selling point. Even then, the nature of the prairie farmer seldom lets him stop. He may sell his farm and move; but he is apt to move back farther into the prairie, take up two farms for the price of one, and work twice as hard as he worked before, always talking about the time when circumstances will give him a chance to retire. The time, in truth, seldom comes.

Yet, men who broke the prairies of Minnesota, the Dakotas, and even of Kansas, say that this Canadian country yields a better living, more creature comforts, and better hope for the to-morrow than can be found in any other wheat-land of the continent. And there can be no doubt at all of the fact that the country to the north grows cleanly, strongly and steadily. The hundred little towns that to-day dot the prairies of Saskatchewan and Alberta look prosperous. They have none of the appearance of the boom towns that disappeared by the hundred in the period of 1893. They are solid little cities, with ambitions and the deepest purpose to act as a market for the broad wheat-lands that lie around them.

And the growth of these local market towns means the building up of one or two great distributing centres. In Alberta the two cities that seem to hold a substantial lead are Calgary and Edmonton. Both claim for themselves the same potentialities that Winnipeg boasted twenty years ago.

A student of commerce, travelling through this land, comes to the conclusion that these two cities, and perhaps others like them, are bound to grow into large and important markets. They have grown from nothing at all into strong, active, rich, and influential little cities on the strength of the opening of perhaps one-quarter of the region that is naturally tributary to them, and every new farm means larger potentialities for them.

REFORM IN RIFLE SHOOTING

The recent Bisley scores made by Canadians and the object for which rifle associations are formed, namely to instruct the mass of people in the art of rifle shooting for national defence, has brought out considerable discussion in eastern papers to the absurdity of the methods of the great proportion of the rifle-shooters who compete at the annual Dominion Rifle Association matches at the Rockcliffe Ranges, Ottawa. A large percentage of the competitors are old stagers who have been going there for years and know every trick in the game and are up to every dodge of the professional rifle-range expert. These gentlemen train more or less all the year round, and when they sail forth to the D. R. A. matches they are fearfully and wonderfully fitted out. They have paints of sundry colors, a neat kit of tools, various scientific devices for accurate sighting, such as orthoptics, windgauges, etc., to say nothing of mild cathartics to regulate themselves. Finally, they get out to the ranges and begin actual rifle-shooting, and woe be unto the rash novice who disturbs the sensitive equilibrium of these delicately adjusted persons by an unseemly behaviour, loud talking, or even poor shooting. Yes, gentle reader, incredible as it may seem to you, some of these D. R. A. rifle sharps are keyed up to such a nervous tension that if one of the men who happens to be shooting on the same or an adjoining target makes an inner or an outer instead of a bull's-eye they are seriously upset and dread the moral effect upon their next shot. Some of them even murmur slightly if their bullets do not strike the very centre of the bull's-eye, they don't understand it, you know; and in the cool of the evening they hold a post-mortem over each shot, poring over diagrams on the ground to aid their elaborate explanations of why they didn't make "possibles." These artists can only do their best in a dead calm or a cathedral hush.

Just imagine one of these complex and high-strung organisms out on active service minus his orthoptics, his cathartics and his whole bag of tricks! He would be lost without his stage accessories. And it is with much gratification that we read in the Ottawa Citizen certain extracts from the annual report of the D. R. A. in which a strong recommendation is made for more of the practical conditions of shooting. It is true that the recommendation refers chiefly to the extreme length of time taken in aiming each shot, but reading between the lines it means that the D. R. A. authorities have wisely determined to make the conditions more practical and to encourage and attract new men. The D. R. A. authorities are to be congratulated upon their sensible action in recommending more practical conditions.

THE REVOLUTION IN SPAIN.

(Winnipeg Telegram.)

The disturbances which have broken out in Spain upon the occasion of the war in Morocco sound the requiem of Spain. So far as anything connected with Morocco is comprehensible, the war appears to have been one of necessity, if the African possessions of Spain were to be protected. And it might be thought that it would have been a point of honor, even if not of material advantage, with the Spaniards, to enter into it with enthusiasm.

But, on the contrary, the war seems to have stirred up deep popular resentment in Spain, and the Spaniards seem to be determined that not one drop of Spanish blood shall be shed without their consent, to prevent the encroachment of a foe, even if those encroachments threaten the integrity of Spain itself.

The roils in Spain may at any time reach a very deep important climax. The anarchists, of whom a particularly virulent type flourishes in Spain, have taken the opportunity to incite roils which have now reached the status of rebellion. These appear to be confined to the cities, and as most of the troops are, in most likelihood, recruited from the country, until the country districts show their hand, a fatal blow to the monarchy may be averted.

It is not in those enemies, however, that the end of Spain is seen. It is the fact that a war involving the prestige and safety of the country, should be unpopular. What a change is there since the days when Spain was mistress of the world! After the sea power of the Turk was crushed at Lepanto in 1571 and he was penned in the Orient, only two powers retained their independence of Spain, France, by virtue of the Pyrenees, and England by virtue of the channel. And, as everybody knows, the independence of England was gravely threatened.

One has only to read the books of the Elizabethan period to know that the world dominion of Spain was regarded as an accepted fact, from which Britain might possibly maintain her independence, but against which no existent power could hope to make headway. And that was less than three hundred years ago. The world dominion of the little city of Rome lasted ages longer than that.

Bacon, in making the very just observation that only those empires are fitted for endurance, which adopt freely the principle of naturalization, thereby weaving the fibres of other nations into the woof of their own institutions, refers to the Spanish empire as a striking exception to the rule. But time has shown that it was not an exception, but an example. A naturalized Spaniard is as rare as an adopted Hollander. Once a Spaniard ever a Spaniard, not a Spaniard never a Spaniard, should have been the Spanish imperial motto.

In this respect, as in some others, the British has shown itself to be the legitimate successor of the Roman empire. Spain is rapidly sinking into the class of Holland, once also an imperial power. She may be rich, prosperous, populous and contented; but for her action on the world's stage, it is over, the lights are out and the current rung down. All that can be heard from behind the Arras is the requiem of her former greatness.

There is a great deal of agitated discussion going on in the papers about applying the lash to highwaymen and sundry species of criminals; but it is wholly probable that if the wholesome correction of the rod were applied to more unruly boys there would be fewer bad men. The boy is the father of the man. There is a lot of happy sentiment expressed in the present highly civilized day about the alleged "brutalising" effects of corporal punishment on children, and the consequence is that the little unlicked cubs grow up into selfish, mannersless, undisciplined men, with no control over their passions, who eventually become criminals. Then, when these men whom we have, by our misplaced maudlin sentiment, helped to develop into criminals commit assaults we demand that they should be lashed! It is far more brutal to out a man's back into bleeding ribbons with the lash, than to give a boy a sound caning over the hands. Childhood is the formative period in human life. Train the children up properly and evil-doing will be minimised. A little more thrashing in youth means a good deal less lashing in maturity.

Makes a Hero of a Coward at One Cut.

Dr. Bonnier Announces It Is Necessary Only to Sever a Small Nerve.

Paris, Aug. 1.—"Such emotions as fear and melancholy are conveyed by a small nerve which springs from the human brain near the modulla oblongata, the top of the spinal cord."

So announces Dr. Bonnier, a distinguished surgeon, who adds that he has removed this nerve and so relieved greatly persons suffering from melancholia and timidity.

Other surgeons seem sceptical about the value of Dr. Bonnier's discovery. But newspaper paragraphers find opportunity to discuss the possibility of turning a coward into a hero by a surgical operation.

J. H. Smith, of Mornington, is trying a rather novel experiment with fall wheat. In his growing oats he sowed wheat, cross the drill marks with the shoe drill. He expects the fall wheat to be sufficiently thick by the time of harvesting the oats, and that the stubble will hold the snow and protect the young wheat during the early spring.

News has been received from Athabasca Landing that Count Von Hammerstein, the famous northern oil prospector, with a party, while trying to run the Grand Rapids in a light boat, were swamped. The party consisted of Van Hammerstein and two men named Ed LaFrance and R. Volkofsky. The latter were drowned, but Hammerstein miraculously escaped by being washed ashore. All their supplies were lost. The mounted police have left for the scene of the disaster.

Alvin Neff, a homesteader in the Long Lake district, St. John's, while under the influence of liquor went to his neighbor's house when the latter was alone with her two children. He forced his way in, knocked her insensible and outraged her. He then left the house and came back the second time and took her naked on the prairie. He returned the third time and threatened to kill her and the children if she ever told. The woman and one of the children are in a serious condition. Firemen at Calgary.

Red Deer takes Second Place in Four Events.

A very small crowd turned out to see the firemen's sports at Calgary on Wednesday last. There were four entries in the championship relay race. Red Deer and Lacombe tied for first place but in the run-off Lacombe won in 35.25 beating Red Deer by 1.5. Pincher Creek took first in the 1-hb. and half with Lacombe second and Red Deer third. Calgary and Medicine Hat also ran. In the relay race Medicine Hat took first, and Red Deer took second with team: Smith, Coghlin, Krause and Carswell. Pincher Creek took first in coupling and sawdust in general society. Red Deer took second. Calgary took first in the 400 yd. race and Medicine Hat won the 100 yds. In 10 sec., with Sinclair of Calgary. The half-mile was won by the 220 and the half-mile with Sinclair second, Calgary took first and second in the novelty race and also won the ladder race. The wet test was run after Red Deer had gone home and was won by Lacombe in 56 seconds.

The boys were taken to the opera in the evening and report having a good time. The sports and concert will be held in Red Deer next year. At the convention of the Calgary placed on the Bylaws and Exhibits Committee, being Chairman of the latter, and read a paper on organization. Secretary W. J. McLeod, was head of the Auditing Committee. Red Deer Band together with some of the Olds band furnished music for the day. Calgary Pipers' Band also played.

How the "Surplus" is Figured Out.

In The Sun of last week some comment was made on the fact that, while a surplus of a million dollars was claimed by the Dominion Government for last year, the public debt had in the same time been increased by nearly $48,000,000.

These contradictory statements are accounted for by the fact that while the total outlay of the year amounted to almost the even one hundred and thirty-one million dollars only a little over eighty-four million dollars were charged against the year's revenue. Nearly forty-seven millions was entered in the ever-convenient "capital" account.

The summary statement of the year's transactions, which is at last has so far been issued, does not give details of the items going to make up the forty-seven million charged to capital, but if we gather them up the appropriations made for the purpose of meeting the year's outgo we shall get an idea of the real nature of some of these so-called capital outlays.

For example, we find in such proposed expenditures by the Department of Public Works an allowance of $7,000 for compensation paid to William J. R. for damages sustained by the St. Prefontaine in a collision with a Government tug and $500 for a gratuity to the mother of a man killed while serving as a mate on the Government steamer Lady Grey. These payments may have been justly made but what possible justification can there be for charging them to capital—making them a part of the public debt—and forcing our children and children's children to pay interest on account of the indebtedness so incurred. An appropriation of $1,250 was made for side ladders for box cars on the Intercolonial and it was arranged that this also should be provided for out of borrowed money, although the first collision took place in 1904 and the ladders are obsolete in ten years and clothing that will be useless in still less time. Finally we have four and one-quarter millions spent on paying salaries and bounties added to pay for the interest on money on these purposes, out of current revenue, would be a piece of folly; to spend borrowed money in this way, and leave our children and grandchildren to pay on account of it, is a crime.

The items given are merely specimen ones. The list might be almost indefinitely prolonged. If a farmer followed the same system of book-keeping, he would show a surplus even in the leanest of years. But if he continued such a system for any great length of time the sheriff would have his share, books and all.—Farmers' Sun.

A Good Suggestion.

The following sensible suggestion is made by a contemporary: The placing of owner's names on farm gates would be a great comfort and convenience to travellers through the country. The idea is by no means a new one, nor is this the first time it was referred to in these columns. To a person from the town or city travelling through the townships it would save long trips to enquire the whereabouts of Mr. So and So's farm, and save the owner Mr. So and So the trouble of explaining. The cost would be very little, compared to the great convenience it would afford. Just a white board with the name in black would meet the requirement, and once such an idea was well started it seems that every farmer would follow the example. It will never cause the public to think that a farmer is proud or seeking for publicity to put his name on the gate as a matter of convenience to others. The business man in town has no hesitation in displaying his name on bold and expensive sign boards in order to direct people to where he lives, and there seems no reason why a farmer should hesitate for a moment to follow the example of his town or city cousin. We hope to see the idea become general before very long.

Count Zeppelin Outdone.

The unexplained stopping of the engine of Latham's aeroplane while he was trying to cross the English Channel recently has enabled a rival to perform the feat first.

M. Bleriot, who accomplished the undertaking recently, used a machine manufactured by himself, but resembling in general character the Antoinette monoplane, with which Latham's attempt was made.

His chief reward, no doubt, was the liberal money prize promised by the London Daily Mail. Though Latham has lost this, a similar opportunity will still be available if the proposition made nearly three years ago by M. Deutsch for the encouragement of the use of "heavier than air" machines is still open.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the first aerial journey from the Continent of Europe to England is that it was made with an aeroplane and not with a dirigible balloon.

The development of the former has been much slower than that of the latter.

Heavier than air machines, capable of travelling twenty miles with practical certainty, were not publicly exhibited until last year.

Both in England and France airships of the other type were making trips of even greater length in 1901.

Spencer, the English aeronaut, remained in the air an hour and forty minutes, and moved at the rate of nearly thirty miles an hour in that time.

Soon afterward a dirigible balloon constructed by the Lebaudy brothers, who have since built several others for the French government, made a trip of nearly thirty miles in an hour.

Soon afterward a dirigible balloon constructed by the Lebaudy brothers, who have since built several others for the French government, made a trip of nearly thirty miles in an hour.

M. Bleriot's achievement, therefore, will serve as a fine advertisement not only for his own machine but also for others. It has shown that airships are capable of doing what has been demonstrated their ability to travel at the rate of forty or forty-five miles an hour—a speed considerably greater than even Count Zeppelin has yet attained.

Tariffers are Sanguine of Victory.

"I saw Mr. Chamberlain at his home," said Col. Denison last night at the House of Commons, "and found him in much better health than I expected. Mrs. Chamberlain said he walked regularly at least half a mile every day in his grounds. Mr. Chamberlain's mind is just as clear as ever and he is full of the question of tariff reform."

The impression seemed to prevail that the old Liberals who inherited the traditions of the party would unite with the Conservatives to oust the Asquith government. Public opinion as indicated by the bye-elections was that a small Socialist party was trying to run the Liberal party. The budget seemed to be exceedingly unpopular with everybody who had any property, but whether the desire to spoil among the lower classes, would be sufficient strong to prevail, it was of course difficult to say.

Lord Roberts was in very excellent health, full of vigor and anxious to do everything he possibly could for the empire.

Canadian Stock At Seattle.

Seattle, Aug. 9.—Stock raisers and breeders throughout the Dominion of Canada are especially interested in the Live Stock and Poultry Show to be held at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition commencing September 27th and ending October 9th. More than $63,000 in cash prizes is being offered and in addition thereto, many valuable cups, medals, souvenirs and ribbons.

The entries up to the present time number 457, including many of the largest herds and flocks in the United States and Canada, and entries will not close till Aug. 25th. McLaughlin Bros., of Columbus, Ohio, breeders and importers of Percheron and Coach horses, have entered thirty head and they will meet in competition other prominent importers both from the East and on the Pacific Coast. Many premium herds of cattle will also be seen. The Agricultural interests of the Pacific Northwest are of supreme importance and the Dominion government as well as the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition have recognized this fact by making special appropriations for breeders who desired to bring their herds to the Exposition.

The Poultry Show to be held in connection with the Live Stock Show will also be one of the main features of the Exposition and great interest is being manifested by the Poultry Fanciers of Canada, and it is believed that when the ribbons are tied that Canada and British Columbia will get their full share.

A CANINE BEAUTY PARLOR.

London, Establishment which is a

There is in London a beauty parlor for dogs which is greatly patronized by the pets of the lazzarone class. This establishment is a small room in a style befitting the class of dogs whose patronage is sought. An artist-dresser of dog fur is the first entered. It is bright and cheerful of appearance. There is nothing different in the eyes of a dog of the most delicate nerves from the drawing room in which he might be housed, and he is not at all call. The walls are covered with red paper, and the floor is of polished wood. The dogs are kept in a clean and comfortable manner. The dogs are kept in a clean and comfortable manner. The dogs are kept in a clean and comfortable manner.

A door from the reception room leads to the salon, where the first impression of a dog is of abundant light and air and perfect hygienic conditions. In the centre is an American barber for dogs. In an alcove is a marble bath with hot and cold water and several kinds of sprays and douches. The bath is perfumed with a pleasant preliminary experience.

After the bath the patient is first carefully wiped with soft, warm towels, and then he is led to the table to be electrically dried. An American apparatus accomplishes this. An electrically driven fan in combination with a gas burner sends out from the wide nozzle of a flexible hose a stream of warm, dry air, which not only speeds the drying process, but gives a delightfully relaxing sensation.

When the dog is quite dry it is combed and brushed, and, if necessary, curled. On a shelf above the table rows of bottles containing hair tonics, lotions, beauty creams and perfumes. The trained nurse denies that any hair lotion is used. In an hour a little Pekinese or other toy lap dog looks at himself in the mirror and is surprised at his own perfection, and his mistress, having finished her shopping, returns to him not only more beautiful but more charming and delightful because of the human effect which the treatment of his impure skin and appearance has on his spirits and temper.

Reversed the Verdict.

A prominent citizen of a large town was recently told by the electric light company's office and declared that one of their wires had killed a pet tree his premises.

"That tree," said he, "has been standing there for twenty years, and we are re-planting it as one of our family. My children played under it when they were babies, and it is associated with some of the pleasantest memories of my life. When it began to die we all mourned and we could not imagine what ailed it until we saw when I noticed that a wire was lying right across a branch. My poor tree died, and the electric company said that it had been cut off by a lightning bolt. It had been cut off for at least two years and forgotten. But the occasion demanded something, and he made the following report: 'Tree alive; wire dead. Wire evidently killed by tree. Bill included.'

The Art of Being Happy.

"Cheerfulness," says Baskin, "is as natural as the heart of a man strong health as glow to his cheek, and where there is health and vigor, there must be either bad air, wholesome food, properly severe labor or exercise, or a habit of life. If children are taught that one of the great life duties is to unfold the fun-loving side of their nature, the fun-loving side would not be so many suicides, so many unhappy, discordant, miserable people, so much failure in the world. Why shouldn't we develop the humor faculty, the fun-loving faculty, just as much as the bread-making faculty or other faculty? Why should we think it is so very necessary to spend years going to school and college to develop other mental faculties and yet take practically no pains whatever to unfold the fun-loving side of our nature?"

In Society.

A man requires a certain amount of tact to behave nicely to his wife in society. He should find out how to look after her without hanging on to her too much. It looks bourgeois for a husband and wife to keep together all the evening. It is better for them to separate directly they get inside a room and make themselves pleasant to the society. A husband should not take his wife down to supper if he can help it, but he should try to take any one else to supper until he sees that some one else is looking after his wife. He should remember that the wife enters the room first and shakes hands with her hostess, her daughters, and the husband last. "Etiquette up to date."

Scared Him.

During the week Brother Gett had knifed Mr. Lambly in a stock deal, and foreclosed a mortgage on his house, used him on a demand note and attached his personal property. Sunday morning Mr. Lambly was in church, thinking to hear something that would make his heart more comfortable. The services were being conducted by Brother Gett. He came to him, grasped him warmly by the hand and asked him what condition his immortal soul was in. "Are you thinking of foreclosing on that 'oor'?" said Mr. Lambly desperately.

SULTAN'S MEALS GROTESQUE.

His Kitchen Built in What Was Visited by a Safe Deposit Vault.

Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan of Turkey, has not been without a generous side. For instance, his jester received a tidy reward for his services in inventing a new kind of torture, which consisted in putting graduates of the law to death by the order of the body and increasing it until the victim confessed or swooned with pain. The Sultan's jester, by his sides. This torture, it is said, inflicted such a shock to the nervous system as to leave the victim rarely occupied with his reason.

The Sultan's meals were as grotesque as if designed by a comic opera writer. He had his own private kitchen, built in what was virtually a safe-deposit vault.

Everything was prepared under the personal supervision of an officer of the household who at the time was held in less suspicion than the others. The meals were sent to the dining room covered with a black cloth sealed by the royal seal. It was the equivalent of high treason for any subject to break the seal, or to alter the order of the Sultan, and in his presence.

Notwithstanding all these precautions, Abdul often refused to taste a dish until it had been "tried on the dog." As the dog was an officer of the household or an attendant.

"No, thank you, I have already dined," said the Sultan, "I don't care for any," never was heard on such an occasion. The attendant took his medicine rather than to have it forced down his throat after it had been "tried on the Sultan's private laboratory."

No one was free from suspicion. Every unexpected incident threw the Sultan into a panic. Aket Eshak, president of the Council of State, was talking with Abdul Hamid one day when, perceiving that a window was open, the Minister rose suddenly to close it.

Before he could take a step the Sultan had his hand on one of his revolvers.

The Prince of Samos, in withdrawing from the royal presence, tripped on a rug and fell. He was immediately recovered his equilibrium. In an instant the ruler of the two continents was behind a screen with a revolver ready for action.

Anatomy for Beginners.

Some time ago a junior reporter got "fired" out of one of the London newspapers offices, and he had to get another crib he made up his mind to become a doctor. He is an anatomist, and he has written a book on the anatomy of the building saboteurs.

"Breeding in a healthy condition from the bone," says the author, "is useful for padding, and the legs. The legs are the body, and are some in leg in motor-cars they take up valuable space which otherwise might be employed to better advantage."

"Attached to the legs are the feet. Some varieties of feet are cold. Some people are born with cold feet, others acquire cold feet, and still others have cold feet from the way they walk. The surface of the body is covered with cuticle, which either hangs in folds or is stretched tightly from bone to bone.

"On the face it is known as the complexion, and is used for commercial purposes by dermatologists, painters, and decorators."

"The body is made up of muscles, which hold the bones together and prevent them from falling apart. The muscles are the liver, and the lungs; also the gall, which in Fleet street is abnormally large."

"These organs are used occasionally by the people who own them, but their real purpose is to furnish surgeons a living."

German Red Taps.

A Danzig, Germany, paper tells a story of incredible red tape in connection with the fire at a big sugar factory, and great damage was done in a few minutes. The flames rapidly spreading, but it was 12,000 cases of raw sugar, each weighing 100 lbs., which might be saved, and all efforts of the fire brigade were turned to that quarter.

Bodies Re-interred Together.

Last winter the question of removing the scattered bodies of the victims of the Frog Lake massacre and interring them in one place was taken up with the Government, and we are pleased to announce that we are in receipt of a letter from Mr. W. C. Gilchrist, of Woodville, Ont., stating that the bodies of his son and of the others have been re-interred in one plot at Frog Lake. The work was done under the direction of Sgt. Hall, of the Mounted Police, the principal part of the work being done by L. G. Goveil, who sent Mr. Gilchrist a bucket and a button found in his son's grave.

Eight bodies now lie at Frog Lake: one plot which has been cleared of brush and surrounded by a neat fence. The bodies of the two priests were removed to the Mission at Otonabee Lake some time ago. Early one morning in April, 1885, the whites numbering eleven, residing at Frog Lake, were taken prisoners by the Indians before they knew that the uprising had actually taken place. Tom Quinn, Indian Agent, and Chas. Gaulin, a carpenter, were shot in front of the Interpreter's house, into which their bodies were thrown and burned, very little of either man being recovered. On hearing the shots at the village fire was once upon the rest of the prisoners who were being taken to the Indian camp. J. A. Gowanlock, who was building the mill, and J. Delaney, farming instructor, were walking with their wives when they were killed, and the two priests were also shot while ministering to the other victims. Williams and Gilchrist, employed at the mill, Geo. Black, a trader, and Henry Quinn, agency blacksmith, ran for the brush but the latter was the only one to succeed. The other prisoner, W.B. Cameron, H.B.C. clerk, had gone to the store with an Indian and also escaped being killed. The bodies were placed in the Roman Catholic church which was afterwards burned down. On the arrival of the troops about June the bodies were dug out of the ruins by the volunteers and buried but the others had to be buried where they lay. Sgt. Hall has always taken great care of the graves and kept them looking neat so that they were readily identified and now all lay side by side, together with the body of Const. Cowan who was killed near Fort Pitt and was interred where found by the soldiers.

Provincial Rights.

Our Ottawa Correspondent on an Interesting Theme.

In previous articles of this series the statement was made that Canada is a federation. The difference between the Canadian and the American systems of federation, stated briefly, is that in the United States all powers which are not expressly given to the Federal Government are supposed to remain vested in the separate States; whereas in Canada all powers not especially granted to the Provinces are supposed to belong to the Dominion jurisdiction. The American theory is that the sovereign State cede to the central government just such powers as are necessary and no more, retaining the rest; while the Canadian theory is that the Dominion Government has ceded to the several Provinces such powers as are necessary for their convenience of administration.

Like a great many theories, this is not wholly borne out in practice. Every American knows that the tendency of today in United States politics is for the federal authority to take more and more upon itself; at the present time, for example, there is in progress something very like a movement whereby the federal authority will acquire the right of controlling commerce, hitherto exercised by the States. On the contrary, in Canada the tendency of a long series of judicial decisions has been to strengthen the Provinces against the Dominion. During the period when Sir John Macdonald was Premier of the Dominion and Sir Oliver Mowat was Premier of Ontario that Province had a series of law suits with the Dominion which established the right of a Province to control liquor licenses, rivers and streams, fisheries within the limits of the province, and a number of other matters which at first it had been thought fell under Dominion jurisdiction. At the present moment there is a sort of backwash from this tendency; the Government in power at Ottawa has become anxious to extend its powers, especially with regard to the chartering of railways and the incorporation of companies, and for some years past a series of conflicts upon this point, in the Province of Ontario and to some extent the Province of Quebec resisting this with great vigor. Another feature of this tendency, which will need full treatment, is the disposition to deny to the Western Provinces the full rights enjoyed by those in the East.

The Legislature of a province may exclusively make laws on a considerable variety of subjects. It would be tedious to give a complete list of these but a few of the most important may be mentioned:—

(1) Direct taxation within the province for the purpose of raising a revenue for provincial purposes. This is an important provision, as it will be seen that the Dominion Government, being precluded from resorting to direct taxation, is obliged to raise its revenue by indirect methods as the tariff and the excise.

(2) The establishment and tenure of provincial offices, and the appointment and payment of provincial officers. Among such provincial officers are sheriffs, registrars, etc.

(3) The establishment and supervision of municipal institutions in the province.

(4) Shop, saloon, auctioneers' and other licenses for the purpose of raising a revenue for provincial, local or municipal purposes. This gives control of the liquor trade to the province and it is now established that only the province can enact a measure of prohibition.

(5) Property and civil rights in the province.

(6) The administration of justice in the province, including the constitution, maintenance and organization of provincial courts, both of civil and of criminal jurisdiction, and including procedure in civil matters in those courts.

In addition to the foregoing there are two or three matters over which there has been much controversy in the past and will be more in the future. All the provinces except Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have the management and sale of the public lands within their borders and the timber, minerals, etc. thereon. This right has been denied to those three provinces. The provinces are allowed to charter and control local works, such as railways, and the exclusive right to regulate the control of them. It is in reference to this power that most of the recent difficulties between the Dominion and Ontario have arisen. Finally, while education is committed to the care of the provinces the Dominion has an obscure and much disputed right to intervene in the protection of religious minorities, a right the exercise of which invariably means trouble.

Finally, the Dominion is supposed to possess a power to disallow provincial legislation; but this is apparently exercised and apparently is falling into disuse.

PATRONAGE IN THE "CANADIAN NAVY."

A great deal of attention has been aroused by a story narrated by The Toronto News as to the way in which the Marine and Fisheries Department manages its fishery protection service which it maintains. Several cadets are carried on the little cruiser Canada, and it is necessary to provide a tutor for them. Not long ago a vacancy occurred and a well known and successful means unfriendly to the Liberal party, suggested to a prominent Anglican clergyman in Nova Scotia that his son would be well qualified to fill the post. The young man accordingly made application; but the Department of Marine and Fisheries informed him that the Patronage Committee at Halifax had decided that the appointment must be a political one, and refused to recommend him. The reason why this young man was prescribed was that his father had been a member of the Conservative general election, and in supporting the Conservative but in organizing a Purification Committee to prevent both parties from resorting to improper practices.

The impression created by this story has been very unfavorable, and numerous papers have commented on it. The strongly Liberal paper, the Ottawa Free Press, has demanded an investigation, and urges that if the story is authentic, steps should be taken to prevent repetition of so scandalous a misuse of patronage.

RED TAPE AND THE SETTLER.

The Toronto News in its issue of July 28th notices a complaint by homestead settlers of vexatious cancellation proceedings which appeared in the Lethbridge News, and says: "The besetting sin of the Government of Canada, which has to deal with settlers in a new country is lack of consideration of the sort which is the common accompaniment of red tape. Once this lack of consideration is well established, the road lies open to designing persons to use the inflexible rules of the Department for the purpose of worrying the settlers for their own gain. It is necessary therefore for a Government to exert every influence to preserve its sympathetic side, and to avoid entanglement in the meshes of officialism."

After noting the features of the complaint in the Lethbridge newspaper, the Toronto News adds:—"If those allegations are justified this is precisely the sort of dealing with the settler which the Government should discourage. The complaints further illustrate the standing injustice done to the Western Provinces by the retention of their lands by the Dominion Government. It is an outrage that men in Mr. Murphy's position should be compelled to have recourse to Ottawa, thousands of miles away from their own locality."

BEAUTIFUL LANGUAGE.

During the recent Provincial election in St. John the settler went on strike and used language regarding the official Liberals of St. John. The St. John Standard unkindly made a partial collection of some of its gems of speech, as herewith: Camp followers; black disgrace; paralytic domination; evil element; parasitic old man of the sea; buccannering organization; flagrant hypocrisy; corrupt and self-serving machine; degrading influences; unscrupulous mercenaries; their own greed; burdensome alliance; predatory and discredited machine; plundering greed; for their personal profit; encroachment of this canker.

TRYING TO BE LESS WASTEFUL.

That the government is making an effort (at least upon the surface) to carry out its pledge of economy in expenditures given to Parliament last session is indicated by an order-in-council recently passed. The order is based on a report to council by the Minister of Finance suggesting that the chief spending departments be admonished to live strictly within the appropriations for their current fiscal year. A copy of this order has been served upon every department. It points out in the interests of economy the absolute necessity that no works be undertaken for which provision has not been made in the estimates, and that authorized services be limited strictly to the sum authorized by the estimates. The object would be to prevent the growing practice of continuing the outlay upon specific projects after the proper appropriations has been exhausted, and so obviate the necessity of supplementary estimates to cover the over-expenditure. Mr. Fielding desires to include in his main estimates next session as nearly as may be the total expenditures projected for the ensuing fiscal year. At any rate he wishes to shift the responsibility for future deficits upon his colleagues.

Some Plain Talk To Our Readers.

The community that will put together, that will work as one for the general interests, will find an abundance of prosperity. And working together means the spending of the dollars of the community within the community. For does it mean that the farmer, the mechanic, the doctor, the preacher, the editor must spend their money at home, but it means also that the merchant must do the same thing. It means that you, Mr. Dry Goods Merchant, must patronize your neighbor, Mr. Furniture Dealer, when you want furniture. It means that you, Mr. Furniture Dealer, must patronize your neighbor, Mr. Dry Goods Merchant, when you want dry goods. It means that the groceryman must patronize the home implement dealer when he wants a new wagon, and the implement dealer must buy his groceries in the home town. It means that whether Mr. Butcher, Mr. Grocer, Mr. Dry Goods Merchant, Mr. Furniture Dealer, Mr. Hardware Man, or whoever it may be that intends to erect a new building, they should buy the material for that building at home of their neighbor, Mr. Building Material Man.

And let us speak a word for Mr. Printer Man also. He is a part of this community; he contributes to its prosperity; he advertises it, and he is entitled to his place in the circle through which the community's dollars are to circulate. When you, Mr. Merchant, want printing of any kind, give the job to the home printer. The dollars that you spend with him he will again spend with you, and both will make a profit on it. It is but fair that he have this, his legitimate share of the business, and as much as a part of the community as yourself, and as much entitled to your support as you are entitled to the support of the farmer, the mechanic, the doctor, the preacher, the lawyer, the banker, the merchant, who makes his visits to the city as anxious to buy his own household supplies, supplies that are not carried on his own shelves, of the city merchants, is not entitled to the support of the community. Such a merchant who is not a part of the community, who is not a part of the home trade, who is not a part of the community's dollars just what he condemns in others—send them away from the community. He would bankrupt this community for selfish interests.

There are few, if any, such merchants as this in this or other communities, but if there are any here it is not for their benefit that this paper is preaching home trade to its readers.

Farmer's Life Seemed Fated.

Kincardine, Ont., Aug. 3.—Samuel Irwin, a farmer of the sixth, concession of Greenock, whose life while engaged in cutting hay. His team started to run away, throwing him in front of the mower knife. He hung onto the horses which began circling. This caused the guards of the knife to mangle his thigh in a terrible manner. The horses were finally stopped and the man was conveyed to his home in a buggy, when he met with another accident. The team, which had been unhitched from the mower, were left in charge of his young son to bring home. In some manner they got away from the lad, and running down the road the wheels of the buggy, one of them jumped into it, crushing the injured man against the dashboard, breaking his shoulder and further injuring him. He lived for some hours.

THE REGISTERED TROTTER STALLION

"ZOMVERT" 2 29 1/2

Was sired by the world renowned "Zombur" 2 11, the greatest show horse and sire of extreme speed that ever lived. Besides many other great ones he sired "Halla" 2 04, world's record for green mare, "San Francisco" 2 07, world's record for three heats by green stallion, "Hyacinth" 2 08, world's record for three-year-old gelding. "Zomvert's" chain to greatness rests not alone with his sire, as his 1st and 2nd dams were both great trotters and his 3rd dam was "Tremor," one of the twelve greatest mares that ever lived. Come to my barn and carefully study his tabulated pedigree, and you will be convinced he is a Prince, and son of a King. The Zomburs have sold for thousands of dollars. Their good horses have brought only hundreds. Farmers, as well as others, look to your interests, and breed a mare or two to a Zomvert while you can. For the present season he will stand for service at my livery and feed barn on Alexander Street, Red Deer, Alta., at prices within the reach of all.

A NEGLECTED CHILD

I examined a man recently whose vision had deteriorated to such an extent that to most things he was blind, and beyond all hope of improvement, though he was still young. Had this man's eyes had proper attention in childhood there was no reason to doubt that he would have had excellent vision today. What a difference it would have made with his life.

You cannot be too careful of the eyes of your children. If you have reason to believe that they have any defect in them, have them promptly, and I will advise you. You may feel sure that I will not prescribe glasses unless they are really necessary.
